

Aren't the airwaves supposed to be vehicles for free speech?

I am writing to request that the FCC reconsider the position of media deregulation. I am very concerned about the limited number of owners in the media today, and the way in which much of the news is delivered from a conservative voice. This is scary stuff. From what I hear when I tune into AM radio while in my car in the afternoon, with the exception of the local latino station, it is 100% "right wing" banter. Something's wrong here.
